STRAND #5 RTI IMPLEMENTATION IN MIDDLE SCHOOL

Description: Response to Intervention can be defined as a school-wide prevention framework that integrates assessment and intervention to improve student outcomes. While much of RtI research and attention has focused on elementary prevention models, RtI implementation at the middle school level is gaining momentum and increased attention. RtI Implementation in Middle School is a five-part webinar series designed to provide RtI middle school teams with information and resources needed to effectively implement a multi-level prevention model in their school. Attention will be devoted to examining various RtI models at the middle school level with respect to scheduling for supplemental intervention, screening, and progress monitoring.

Intended Audience: RtI Implementation in Middle School is intended for middle school personnel who are involved with implementing an RtI model in their respective schools.

Presenter: Dr. Evelyn Johnson, Professor, Department of Special Education and Early Childhood Studies at Boise State University and Director of Lee Pesky Learning Center
